Preface

I hope this Julian record will prove useful to those who may search its contents.

For several years I have collected Julian genealogical data while working on my husband's line. After proving it to my satisfaction I decided to assemble and try to interpret the great mass of isolated material in my files. Mrs. Rebecca Downey White had spent many years in doing research on the family and much of this material had been collected by her. Almost every one that I wrote to either referred me to her or said their information had come from her. I had too much to be destroyed when it might be useful to someone else.

I realize it is far from being complete, that there needs to be many corrections and additions to make it into a complete Julian family history. But at least it may contain just the clue someone is needing to continue on with their own research.

When it comes to the notice of any individual who can furnish additional information on names, dates, biographical material on direct ancestors, or on their descendants, I would greatly appreciate receiving any such information.

History of the name Julian--and where to find it.

The Jones Brothers Publishing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, 1910.

Vol. III, page 74.

By the Composition and publication of these works Vergil achieved an enviable fame; but his genius, not content with present achievement, spared still higher and sought in the creation of a great epic to find food for its hunger. The poet selected for his theme the prehistoric story of Rome.

The flight of AENEAS from the flames of Troy, bearing with him the Penates of the ruined city, and seeking, under the guidance of prophecy, the distant shore whereon he should build the city and restore the institutions of his race--furnished the heroic subject of his song THE AENEIS, justly reckoned the greatest monument of the genius of Rome. In the conduct of his theme, Vergil showed consummate skill. The intrinsic interest of the ancient story is maintained; and at the same time the episodes and allusions are so managed as to become a tribute to the existing order of Roman society.

The descent of the Julian line is traced to AENEAS. The whole tendency of the poem is such as to flatter the vanity and inspire the patriotism of the Latin

In tracing the name AENEAS to other history--I looked it up in my copy of THE LIFE AND WORKS OF FLAVIUS JOSEPHUS translated by William Whiston, A.M. published by the JOHN C. WINSTON CO., in Phil.

ANTIQUITIES OF THE JEWS--Book XVI, Chapter X page 495.

And it came to pass that Obodas was dead; and AENEAS, whose name was afterward changed to ARETAS* took the government, for Sylleus endeavoured by calumnies to get him turned out of his principality, that he might himself take it; with which design he gave much money to the courtiers, and promised much money to Caesar, who indeed was angry that Aretas had not sent to him first before he took the Kingdom;

*This Aretas was now become as established a name for the Kings of Arabia (at Petra and Damascus,) that when the crown came to AENEAS, he changed his name to ARETAS, as Havercamp here justly observes. See Antic. B. XIII. Ch. XV Sect. 2.

yet did Aeneas send an epistle and presents to Caesar, and a golden crown, of the weight of many talents. Now that epistle accused Syllus as having been a wicked servant, and having killed Obodas by poison; and that while he was alive, he had governed him as he pleased; and had also debauched the wives of the Arabians; and had borrowed money, in order to obtain the dominion for himself; yet did not Caesar give heed to these accusations, but sent his ambassadors back, without receiving any of his presents.

But in the mean time the affairs of Judea and Arabia became worse and worse, partly because of the anarchy they were under, and partly because, as bad as they were, nobody had power to govern them; for the two kings, the one was not yet confirmed in his kingdom, and so had not authority sufficient to restrain the evil-doers; and as for Herod, Caesar was immediately angry at him for having avenged himself, and so he was compelled to bear all the injuries that were offered him. At length, when he saw no end of the mischief which surrounded him, he resolved to send ambassadors to Rome again, to see whether his friends had prevailed to mitigate Caesar, and to address themselves to Caesar himself; and the ambassador he sent thither was Niclaus of Damascus.

ARETAS (Greek form of Harathath).

More than one king of Arabia Petraea, during the time that it was occupied by the Nabataean Arabs, bore this name. Among others,

1. A contemporary of the high priest Jason, about 170 B.C.
(2 Max. v. 8)

2. Father-in-law of Herod the Tetrarch when Herod prepared to divorce his daughter in order to marry Herodias, Aretas declared war against Herod and totally defeated his army in A. D. 36. The Romans took Herod's part, and Vitellius was dispatched to chastise Aretas, but the death of the Emperor Tiberius put an end to the expedition (Antiq. xviii. 5, 1-3).

It was about A. D. 39 or 40, during the reign of Caligula, or perhaps in 36, that Aretas for a brief period held Damascus (2 Cor. xi. 32).

ANTIQUITIES OF THE JEWS Book XVIII, Chap. V. page 539-540

HEROD THE TETRARCH MAKES WAR WITH ARETAS, THE KING OF ARABIA, AND IS BEATEN BY HIM; AS ALSO CONCERNING THE DEATH OF JOHN THE BAPTIST.

About this time ARETAS (the king of Arabia Petrea) and Herod had a quarrel on the account following: Herod the tetrarch had married the daughter of ARETAS, and had lived with her a great while; but when he was once at Rome, he lodged with Herod*, who was his brother indeed, but not by the same mother; for this Herod was the son of the high priest Simon's daughter. However, he fell in love with Herodias, this last Herod's wife, who was the daughter of Aristobulus their brother, and the sister of Agrippa the Great. This man ventured to talk to her about a marriage between them; which address, when she admitted, an agreement was made for her to change her habitation, and come to him as soon as he should return from Rome; one article of this marriage also was this, that he should divorce ARETAS'S daughter. So Antipas, when he had made this agreement, sailed to Rome; but when he had done there the business he went about, and was returned again, his wife having learned it before he had notice to her knowledge of the while design, she desired him to send her to Macherus, which is a place in the borders of the dominions of ARETAS and Herod, without informing him of any of her intentions. Accordingly Herod sent her thither, as thinking his wife had not perceived anything; now she had sent a good while before to Macherus, which was subject to her father, and so all things necessary for her journey were made ready for her by the generals, Aretas's army; under the conduct of the several generals, who carried her from one to another successively; and she soon came to her father, and told him of Herod's intentions.

So ARETAS made this the first occasion of his enmity between him and Herod, who had also some quarrel with him raised armies on both sides, and prepared for war, and sent their generals to fight instead of themselves; and when they had joined battle, all Herod's army was destroyed by the treachery of some fugitives, who, though they were of the Tetrarchy of Philip, joined with ARETAS'S army. So Herod wrote about these affairs to Tiberius, who being angry at the attempt made by ARETAS, wrote to Vitellius to make war upon him, and either to take him alive, and bring him to him in bonds, or to kill him, and send him his head. This was the charge that Tiberius gave to the president of Syria.

2. How some of the Jews thought that the destruction of Herod's army came from God, and that very justly, as a punishment of what he did against John, that was called the BAPTIST; for Herod slew him, who was a good man, and commanded the Jews to exercise virtue, both as to righteousness towards one another, and piety towards God, and so

(For they would rather suffer any hardship whatever than come under the power of their enemies,) ARETAS, King of the Arabians, a person then very illustrious, encouraged them to go on with alacrity, and promised them that he would come to their assistance; but it happened that before he came Apollodotus was slain; for his brother Lysimachus envying him for the great reputation he had gained among the citizens, slew him, and got the army together, and delivered up the city to Alexander, who when he came in at first, lay quiet, but afterward set his army upon the inhabitants of Gaza, and gave them leave to punish them; so some went one way, and some went another, and slew the inhabitants of Gaza; yet were not they of cowardly hearts, but opposed those that came to slay them, and slew as many of the jews; and some of them, when they saw themselves deserted, burnt their own houses, that the enemy might get none of their spoils; ney, some of them with their own hands, slew their children and their wives, having no other way but this of aboiding slavery for them;

But the senators, who were in all five hundred, fled to Apollo's Temple, (for this attack happened to be made as they were sitting,) whom Alexander slew; and when he had utterly overthrown their city, he returned to Jerusalem having spent a year in that siege.

1. After this, Antiochus, who was called Dionysus,* and was Philip's brother, aspired to the dominion, and came to Damascus, and got the power into his hands, and there he reigned; but as he was making war against the Arabians, his brother Philop heard of it, and came to Damascus, where Milesius, who had been left governor of the citadel, and the Damascens themselves, delivered up the city to him; yet because Philop was become ungrateful to him, and had bestowed pon him nothing of that in hopes whereof he had received him into the city, but had a mind to have it believed that it was rather delivered up out of fear then by the kindness of Milesius, and because he had not rewarded him as he ought to have done, he became suspected by him, and so he was obliged to leave Damascua again; for Milesius caught him marching out into the Hippodrome, and shut him up in it, and kept Damascus for Antiochus (Ducerus), who hearing how Philop's affairs stood, came back out of Arabia. He also came immediately, and made an expedition against Judea, with eight thousand armed footmen, and eight hundred horsemen.

2. After him *ARETAS reigned over Calesyria.
Footnote: *This Aretas was the first King of the Arabians, who took Damascus, and reigned there; which name became afterwards common in such Arabian Kings, both at Petra and at Damascus, as we learn from Josephus in many places; and from St. Paul, 2 Cor. xi 32. See the note on Antiq. b. XVI Ch. ix. Sec. 4.

(I have covered enough of this history to make it clear to any reader the history connection of this Julian family--according to Ridpath-Josephus and the Bible.) There is much more history on this Aretas in Antiquities of the Jews--entirely too much and too scattered to copy all of it. Very interesting reading on our family name.

Pierre de St. Julien
Louis de St. Julien

Pierre de St Julien, Count of Malacare, Vitre, France.

Memorials of the Huguenots in America by Stapleton Santee, pub. 1901

After the influx caused by the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes 1685 three additional congregations were formed, one on the eastern bank of the Cooper River, known as Grange Quarters, one on the west bank, known as St. John Berkleys and one at Jamestown on the Santee.

This is a notable circumstance that many of the refugees to Carolina were of distinguished antecedents and not a few of the nobility. Among the latter was Pierre de St Julien and his brother Louis and his brother-in-law, Rene Ravenal and Samuel Bordina (?) all from the town of Vitre in Bretangney. They came to America in 1686.

St Julien of Vitre France

This is an exact copy of the de St. Juliens birth records at Vitre France

Pierre (also called Rene) de St. Julien and Count of Malscar, came to Vitre and married Jeanne LeFebre, daughter of Janiel LeFebre, to Fougery by his 2nd wife, Marie Bozault, grand daughter of Jean LeFebre, Count of Baubimiere and LaFaucillonais, great grand daughter of Jean LeFebre Sienn de L'Ambiniere and De Guyenne Farnel.

M. St Julien and Jeanne LeFebre and the following children recorded at Vitre, France.

1. Aimee-born March 7, 1667
2. Charlotte-born May 15, 1668 (she got married in SC to Rene Ravenal and emigrant). Her father and brother Pierre were present at the wedding.
3. Pierre-born July 4, 1669.
4. Louis-born Aug. 5, 1670.
5. Marguerite-born Dec. 19, 1671.
6. Paul-born Oct. 4, 1673.
7. Emilie-born Jan. 10, 1675. (she was named for Emile de Hease of Farente, friend of Marie de Rabuten Chantal, Princess of de Sevigne)
8. Jeanne Renee-born May 6, 1678.
9. Marie Ester-born Dec. 1679.

There is no document in Vitre except this one concerning the origin of the de St Julien family. From which French province did they come to Vitre? It might be that they were connected with the house of Barona of La Tremoille and it might be from the province of Peitou, but concerning this matter I know nothing definitely.

The Julian Family in Bohemia Manor, Cecil Co., Md.

Little seems to be known in Bohemia Manor today about one of its early families, that of Rene Julian. The writer of these notes about him offers them for publication, not so much because the family deserves recognition, as in the sincere hope that someone who reads them may help to clarify the period of his residence there, which is definitely known to have been from 1720 to 1737, as shown by the following records of his land transactions, and the period preceding it.

The following records of Rene Julian's land transactions are in the court house at Elkton.

Vol. 7 p. 414 May 1. 1720 Deed of lease made by Ephraim Augustine Herman to Rene Julian, "his heirs for and during 3 natural lives of said Rene Julian and of Stephen Julian, son of Rene Julian, and Peter Julian", "the land being part of Bohemia Manor being a vacancy between Charles Mullins and land of Henry Dehoofs land, John Sidler's land and Newcastle Road".

Vol. 5 p. 408 Mar. 15. 1737 Rene Julian transferred this lease to Henry McCoy for sum of 40 pounds current money of province of Penn. Sealed and delivered in presence of Hugh Wallter and Thos. Yorkson. (Refers to S K 5 pp. 138-9 of lease from Ephraim Augustine Herman May 1, 1720, but incorrectly copied as 1728. S K 5 is lost, but the original provided the information).

Vol. 6 p. 22 April 17. 1740 Henry McCoy transferred this lease of land in "Nobletown" to Abraham Allman for 70 pounds current money of Md.

Vol. W K 2 p. 337 May 9. 1752 (recorded) Joseph Allman (son of Abraham Allman), Teresa Allman, widow, and Dr. Hugh Matthews Jr. (uncertain if last mentioned is grantor or grantee) transferred this lease to ? Dr. Hugh Matthews Jr. and to Anthony Fartade (Fartado ?) Witnessed by Richard Thompson and Adam Van Bibber.

Vol. 7 p. 414 April 3. 1751 Cornelius Woolaston Farmer (? grantor or grantee) and Anthony Fartade, wife Susan.

Vol 9 p. 300 date? Anthony Fartade to Joseph Ensor

Vol. 9 p.300 Feb. 5. 1861¹⁷⁶¹ Joseph Ensor gentleman to Edward Mitchell Merchant "for sum of one hundred and four pounds, sixteen shillings and eight pence, plantation or tenements of land situate in Bohemia Manor, Cecil County, Md., originally on the 1st of May 1720 granted by lease to a certain Reese (Rene) Julian for 3 natural lives that is to say of him, said Reese Julian and his sons Stephen and Peter Julian by Col. Ephraim Augustine Herman, Lord of Bohemia Manor."

RENE' ST. JULIEN (anglicized to Julien), born in France in 1660's ca, was a Huguenot who fought at the Battle of the Boyne in Ireland in 1690 and came to America about 1700, having stopped at the Island of Bermuda en route by tradition, where he married Mary Bullock. He became a soldier as a youth and was in the army of James II in the English Revolution of 1688, during which time he was (Roman Catholic.) From reasons of preference, he is said to have deserted to the standard of King William along with many others. For his services to King William he was given a grant of land on the Mississippi River and he used to tell his family that they need never consider themselves settled until they were established there. But his children when grown were not inclined to go to what was then a savage region, and persuaded him to buy land. He went first to the shores of the Carolinas and, losing two sons there, he decided to remove to the more healthy region on the Eastern shore of Chesapeake Bay. ^(Cecil Co) There was a colony of French families on the Santee River in South Carolina which began to migrate about 1712, due to the unhealthy climate. This family may well have been among them. An article published by the Chattanooga Times 1-14-1934 in its department of "Leaves from the Family Tree" on the Julian Family p. 4 states that Rene' Julien and his wife were living in Cecil County, Md. in 1712. Just where the author, the Rev. John Morgan Wooton, now deceased, got his information is not known.

The earliest record of Rene' Julien in Bohemia Manor is in 1720 as shown by the fore going land leases. The period from 1700 until 1720 is blank so far as he is concerned, excepting for the record of the birth of his son Isaac in 1716 which appears in the Register of St. Ann's Parish at Annapolis which is now in the Hall of Records there. It is not known where he was living at the time of this son's birth. It is a coincidence that, on the same page with the record of Isaac Julien's birth (Rene's son) in the St. Ann's Parish Register, there appears also the record of the birth of Sarah Thompson 9-14-1716 "daughter of Richard and Mary Thompson". This is probably Richard Thompson Sr. born 1667 of the St. Stephen Parish Records of Bohemia Manor in Cecil Co. Md., who had a daughter Sarah Young. It suggests that the people of Bohemia Manor may have registered births of their children across the bay in Annapolis, perhaps by courier. A comparative study of the two registers of St. Ann's and St. Stephen's Parishes might reveal other coincidences which would be profitable to know genealogically.

Rene' St. Julien may have been a brother of Pierre de St. Julien, whose daughter Charlotte married in 1687 Rene' Ravenel in Charleston, South Carolina. He was a Huguenot from Vitry, Brittany, who went to Dublin, Ireland, with his family, and thence to America. Shortly after his daughter's marriage he returned to Dublin, where he died in 1705, leaving at least a son Pierre (Peter) in S. C.

The family of Dr. John Julian, son of Charles, who was a surgeon in the Revolution lived in Spottsylvania Co., Va. and is not of Rene' Julien's family, so far as is now known.

Rene' and Mary Bullock Julien had seven sons and three daughters who grew up in Bohemia Manor. Whether or not they were born there is uncertain. It is known that two daughters were married there, and it is probable that some of the other children were also, records of which are missing at present and are desired. By 1737, when Rene' Julien assigned his lease in Bohemia Manor to Henry McCoy, he was a very old man. It is assumed that this was the date of his going to Winchester, Frederick Co., Va. with five of his sons, three of whom purchased land from Lord Fairfax, though not until 1750. The record of the afore mentioned son Isaac's marriage there in 1741 shows that the family was in Frederick Co., Va. then. The father, Rene' Julien, was living still in 1744, the last known documentary date of him known to exist. It is assumed that he and his wife lie buried in old Opwecon Cemetery near Winchester, Va., land for which was given by William Hoge into whose family the son Isaac married. Shortly after Braddock's defeat in 1755, the five sons who went with him to Virginia from Bohimia Manor in Cecil Co., Md. fled through terror of the Indians with their families to Orange County, N. C. which later became Randolph County and Guilford County, where they took land grants. They left behind them what could not be taken in covered wagons, two sons did not go from Bohimia Manor to Virginia with their father, the eldest, Stephen, who is named in the lease from Ephraim Augustine Herman to Rene' Julien in 1720, and Jacob. They removed to Prince George's County, Md. (Frederick Co. 1748), where the first record of them appears in 1743.

Rene' Julien, in America, became a slave holder and a Presbyterian, and hated the Quakers for their testimony against war and slavery. He was large and tall, and is said to have had red hair, and to have been a perverse man of fiery disposition. Among the present generations of his descendants, many branches have a red haired member in them. Mary Bullock Julien, wife of Rene' St. Julien, is said to have been "a great lady". She was of Spanish descent. Search of Bermuda records fails to reveal her marriage to Rene' St. Julien. But "evidence" seems to point to her having been a daughter of Capt. Stephen Bullock who came from a Quaker family. If this is correct, the attitudes of Rene' and Mary Bullock Julien must sometimes have conflicted. Some of their descendants in North Carolina became Quakers.

Descendants of Rene' and Mary Bullock Julien include many statesmen, teachers, ministers, lawyers, and doctors from the beginning, as well as some without benefit of education, but all have been people of character.

There seems to have been some controversy over whether he was 2nd or 4th son. The Bohemia Manor lease would indicate that he was 2nd, but we should remember the reason for René's leaving S. C. — which would probably make Peter, Sr. really the 4th son, with 2 sons being deceased at the time of the Bohemia Manor lease.

Peter went to Fred. Co., Va., with father and brothers George, John, Isaac and René. Stephen and Jacob remained in Md. (Va. State Lib. at Richmond, Bk. This date accounts for late recording of sale by Jacob Julin in York Co., S. C. in capacity of Admr. for heirs of George Julin; to William Julin in 1788, then to Burke Co., N. 5.4. GEORGE JULIEN, son of Peter
d. 3rd week of Sept. 1781
m. Hannah _____, b. 1725 (?), d. 1821, bur Shiloh Cem. Randolph Co., N. C.

York Co. S. C., Bk. B, p.295, 7-14-1789, Jacob Julin of Mecklinburg Co., N. C., sold land on King's Crk. on E. bank to Jeremiah Craven, York Co., S. C., for the heirs, executors and administrators of George Julian, dec'd. Mrs White adds: George Julian's land was orded confiscated after his death in 1781 and it was sold to James Moffett, who bought it in good faith. Jacob Julin, son of George, protested to Assembly, bringing an affidavit of George's death at the Cr. Mtg. House at Dorchester, S. C. , which had been fortified against the British who were at Charleston harbor. This affidavit was given by Jemima Ponder, who stated that she had seen "George Julian depoar this life about the 3rd week in Sept., 1781, at the Cr. Mtg. House at Dorchester." The sale of the land of George Julian by Jacob Juliar for the benefit of the heirs of george show that it was not confiscated. James Moffett became an old and poor man before the Assembly allowed him his expenses of purchase (1785), and cost of litigation which was not settled until 1809. The original of Jacob Julian's protest and the other papers in the litigation, including Jemima Ponder's-affidavit are in the S. C. Historical Com. in Columbia, S.C. It is assumed that he was injured in a battle at the fort of Dorchester, near Charlestown, in July of 1781 and that he probably died of wounds. Many men were Royalists in the ranks of the soldiers and many men took their families with them. However, he was accused of disloyal acts as early as 1777.

Mrs. White also states that George is a son of Peter, Rs., only by conjecture, but justifiable!

Hannah returned to N.C. with son, Jesse, also sons John and Joseph and others. Hannah and son Jesse, donated land for Shiloh Methodist Church, which was built about 1800 in Randolph Co.

recorded 1752, to Dr. Hugh Matthews Jr. and Anthony Fartade. This land was leased to Rene Julien 5-1-1720 by Ephriam Augustine Herman. This was Richard Thompson, Jr. who married Mary Allman 11-12-1739, dau. of Abraham Allman.

III. Peter (by tradition the 4th son, but the 1720 lease seems to show that he was 2nd son), m. "Mary" either in Bohemia Manor or Va. N.N. Grant from Lord Fairfax, Fred'k Co. Va. 4-17-1753 for 389 acres of land adjacent to that of Jesse Pugh, which he sold to Jonathon Parkins 3-3-1761. No record of Grant in N.C., but deed at Guilford Courthouse names wife "Ann" in 1773 in Stinking Quarter, then Alamance Co.

Peter Julian Sr., and s. Peter Jr., were Regulators from Orange Co., N.C. who left N.C. for Newberry Co., S.C. shortly after the War of the Regulation. He appears as "Capt. Peter Julien" in 1790 S.C. Census.

Name of only one child definitely known: Peter Julien Jr. m. 1771 ca (? M O U) Ruth Pugh b. 2-26-1746 Hopewell Fr. Mtg. dau. of Azariah Pugh who married 1745 at Hopewell Mo. Mtg., Fred'k Co., Va. Hannah Beals, dau of William Beals, who was s. of John and Mary Clayton Beals of Lot. No. 37 Nottingham. *Four sons of Peter Julien Jr. went to Ohio 1810: William, Azariah, Stephen, Eli, 1 son remained in S.C. Jesse.

Mr. Louis Tanza Payne, who has made extensive research on the Julien family, is a descendant of Peter Jr. and Ruth Pugh Julien.

IV. George, m. "Martha" either in Bohemia Manor or Va. He had N.N. Grant (Northern Neck) from Lord Fairfax 4-2-1750 for 400 A which he sold to Thome Pugh 9-15-1758. He is probably the George Julian who bought 300 A 1768 on King's Cr. which is recorded in Mecklinburg Co., N.C., and was signer of a petition to the King about the boundary between North and South Carolina 5-15-1775. After it was established, the land of George Julian lay in York, S.C.

It is not known to which branch John Julian belonged who obtained a grant of 194 A "on both sides of Young's Fork of Muddy Cr." in Burke Co. N.C. 7-21-1778. He could have been a son of this George Julian, for all of that region was once known as Burke Co. A "Capt. John Julian" lived in Salisbury in 1810.

The maiden name of "Martha", wife of George Julian, is not known, nor are the names of his children known definitely.

(DENTON)

The George Julian whose family is buried in Shiloh Cemetery in Randolph Co. N.C. is thought to have been son of George 1st. For George Julian 1st stopped in Randolph Co. en route from Va. to the southern part of the state.

The George Julian 1770-1845, who m. 4-9-1791 Rebecca McKinna (McKinn) by Mecklinburg, N.C. records, and went to Tenn, 1815 in Blount Co. has been thought by descendants to have been a son of George 1st. It seems more likely that he comes from an intervening son, possibly the John Julian who took land in 1778 in Burke Co., N.C. (taken from Rowan Co. 1777).

Other possible sons of John Julian who took land in Burke Co. N.C. 1778 are:

- a. Benjamin, 1790 Burke Co. Census 1 son, 4 dau. ? to White Co., Tenn
- b. *David, 1790 Burke Co. Census, 2 sons, 6 dau. ? 1789 "of Burke Co." York Co., S.C. later sold land on King's Cr.

V. John, if he married, he left no descendants. He lies buried in the Trogden family graveyard in Randolph Co., N.C. No grant of land to John Julien in Fred'k Co., Va. where he went from Bohemia Manor. Grant Orange Co., N.C. for 200 acres, 12-19-1762 next to his brother Isaac, which the latter inherited upon John's death. The two brothers took grants on the same day. This land is still in the possession of Isaac Julien's descendants.

The Hoges, Whites, and Rene and Mary Bullock Julien lie buried in old Opequon Cemetery at Winchester, Va., land for which was donated by William Hoge. The soldiers of the Civil War used it as a barracks, and the tomb stones as tables, and when this writer visited it in 1919, there were no marked graves.

John Robinson, Sr. bought 1724 100 acres at south end of Nottingham, Lot No. 31 from John Elswick, who had bought it from Robert Dutton, who bought it from Wm. Penn 1701. By his Will 1744, John Robinson left this land to his sons: John and Aaron in case his wife should remarry. She did remarry and John sold his share, which was the western half, to Samuel England for 50 pounds in 1750.

Tobias Long sold right to dig a water course through his land to James Evans of West Nottingham Twp. in Prov. of Pa. 8-13-1760. 4-1771 part of Tobias Long's plantation was surveyed for John Borland, this date 1771 is probably the date of Tobias Long's removal to N.C. Subsequent transfers of this land would show who are the present owners, and its exact location.

Tobias Long was in the Colonial Militia 1740 Cecil Co., Md., a corporal in a Foot Co. under command of Capt. Edward Jackson.

The author of these notes, born 1878 Indianapolis, Indiana, descends through her mother, Mary Julian Downey, from Isaac II and Sarah Long Julien in the 7th generation from Rene and Mary Bullock Julien.

Isaac and Sarah Long Julien had six sons and six daughters, all but two sons going to Indiana from N.C. with them in 1815.—Bohan, the eldest, b. 1777, who inherited his father's land and home which is still occupied by his descendants, and Tobias, b. 1779.

This ends the family of Rene and Mary Bullock Julien as it relates to Bohemia Manor, so far as data possessed by this writer is concerned.

Among the notes of the Rev. Charles Payson Mallory which are deposited in the Md. Hist. Soc. Lib. in Baltimore is one No. 818 which gives Robert Julien Bouchelle who married Mary Ann (or) Anna Maria Bayard, daughter of Samuel Bayard. Descendants of Rene Julien of Bohemia Manor would like to know: 1st: where the intermarriage with the two families occurred, and 2nd: where Mr. Mallory deposited the genealogical charts of the Bouchelle, Sluyter, and Thompson families which he states that he possesses in his paper on "Ancient Families of Bohemia Manor" which he prepared for, and which was published by, the Historical Society of Delaware in 1888? and 3rd: if Julian Carroll, b. 3-23-1729, St. Stephen Par. Reg., dau. of Dominic and Mary Carroll, received her name because of an intermarriage with the Julien family?

The writer is in possession of the original of the History of the Julien Family as furnished by the Hon. Geo. W. Julian of Indiana in 1871 to the Office of the Genealogical Registry for the United States, 67 University Place, New York City, which recorded it in Vol. 1 of the "French and Spanish Families in the United States" deposited in this Registry. It is affixed with the red seal of the Registry by red ribbons, and is signed by the President, Wm. Coventry H. Waddell, and the Secretary, M. T. Forman Assitt (writing uncertain because of old fashioned "s"), on Jan. 3rd, 1872. This date does not agree with that on the heading which gives 1871. The writer has tried without success several times to locate this Registry in New York City, and has been told that it no longer is in existence, and that the place wherein its volumes are deposited is not known.

and Allied Families

This family history is concerned primarily with the descendants of George and Rebecca McKinney Julian who came to Tennessee from North Carolina about 1815. Their children settled in Tennessee, North Georgia and Alabama, and their progeny may be found all over the country, and the world. Included, also, are the lines of other Julian researchers. ALL are descendants of the French Huguenot, Rene de St. Julien, and thus related.

FOREWORD

After several years of spasmodic research and note-taking, I have come to the conclusion that it is time to put together what I have for whatever value it has- and that is considerable, information-wise. A family history would never be complete, for it is constantly in the making, and each "new" ancestor discovered adds many "lines" to the total picture. The pages that follow simply contain the known as far as I am concerned, and, hopefully, will provide a springboard for more research. By having typing on one side of the paper only, there is ample room for adding notes and recording significant events as they occur. Please do this, and the second edition will be more complete and valuable.

I have used the outline form to facilitate keeping generations straight, e.g:

I. Isom Julian

A. Patterson Julian

1. Frank A. Julian

a. Robt. French Julian

(1) Robt. I. Julian

(a) Robt. I. Julian, Jr.

(1) Robt. Dwayne Julian

Frequent reference to the Table of Contents and the Surname Index will be helpful.

I am deeply indebted to all those who have furnished information, so many of whom have come to my aid more than once. I am grateful to those who have given encouragement in the project, and to my husband who has been tolerant and understanding while I have been engrossed in the many details required to complete it. It has been a labor, a labor of love.

We who have the Julian blood in our veins have reason to be justly proud. We knew we were descendants of Rene St. Julien from common family talk. His descendants are legion, and there are scores of people all over the United States interested in Julian lore. This segment of Julian history is concerned primarily with the family of George and Rebecca McKinney Julian, who came from North Carolina to Blount County, Tennessee about 1815. Also included are brief sketches of the families of some wonderful Julian correspondents, who, although they are "distant cousins" have a definite place in this account.

Shakespeare wrote: "The evil that men do lives after them,

The good is oft interred with their bones".

We are reversing this! The Julians were not perfect, but there is no use telling of idiosyncracies and less desirable traits. Thomas L. Bryan wrote, in an article about the Julians to a Cleveland paper many years ago:

"Not all the nobles of the earth

Who boast the honors of their birth

Such real dignity can claim

As those who bear the Christian name"

The truth of this statement is borne out repeatedly in the pages that follow, as well as many family characteristics that make the Julian Family "e pluribus unum."

There are numerous errors and omissions, I am sure. They are of the head, and not of the heart. Some of them are the results of unanswered letters! If those who read this little book recall fond days gone by, enjoy the present more by being better informed of their heritage, and are inspired to add to the store of information in the future, I shall be happy indeed.

RENE de St. JULIEN

Rene de St. Julien was born about 1660, and no doubt was from Vitre, Brittany, in the northwestern part of France. A letter from Vitre says, "There is no document in Vitre showing what province they came from before coming to Vitre. They are of nobility beyond doubt." There are birth records of nine children born to Pierre (also called Rene) de St. Julien and his wife, Jeanne Lefebvre. After the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, many Huguenots came to America. "Many of the refugees to Carolina were of distinguished antecedents and not a few of the nobility. Among them were Pierre de St. Julian, his brother Louis, his brother-in-law, Rene Ravenal, and others, all from Vitre in Brittany. A deed from typescript record of South Carolina Indentures for 1712-13, Charleston, p. 67 lists Rene Julien, planter of Berkely, to Isaac Motte, 462 A. on Boowatt Creek, bounds on land of John Perry, Esq., called Yough, 4-21-1712. This plantation was in the midst of Pierre Julien's many plantations.* It seems very reasonable that Rene was a brother of Pierre. Rene is in a record of denizens, 3-11-1700. Losing two young sons, Rene decided to move to the more healthful climate of Maryland. In 1712 Rene de St. Julien was living in Cecil County, Md.

Rene became a soldier in his youth, and was in the army of James II in the English Revolution of 1688, but for reasons of preference changed to the standard of King William along with many others. He fought under him at the Battle of the Boyne, July 1, 1690. For his services as a soldier he was granted by the reigning family of England land beyond the Mississippi River. He is said to have told his family they need never consider themselves settled until they were established there. But they lived in Maryland until 1735-40, moved to Winchester, Va., where Rene died about 1744. There he and his wife are buried in the old Opequon Cemetery. Shortly after Braddock's defeat in 1755, Rene's five sons who had come with him from Maryland (Stephen and Jacob remained there) fled through terror of the Indians to Orange Co. North Carolina, and took land grants in the section which later became Randolph and Guilford Counties.

En route to America Rene de St. Julien stopped off on the Isle of Bermuda and married Mary Bullock. (See sketch of the Bullock Family)

The earliest land transaction on record for Bohemia Manor and Rene Julian is May 1, 1720, but his being there earlier is attested by the record of the birth of his son Isaac in 1716, which appears in the Register of St. Ann's Parish at Annapolis, which is now in the Hall of Records there. In 1737 the lease obtained in 1720 was transferred to Henry McCoy, and it is assumed that this was the time of his going to Winchester, Frederick Co., Va.

BULLOCK

By all known accounts Rene de St. Julien (anglicized to Julian) is said to have come to America after the Battle of the Bayne, after stepping in the Island of Bermuda, where he married Mary Bullock. Her name in some records is given as Margaret, but the frequent use of "Mary" in names of a daughter and granddaughters would indicate its correctness. Also, the naming of the oldest son of Rene and Mary "Stephen" lends credence to Mary's being the daughter of Capt. Stephen Bullock and Mary, his wife, who was administrator of his will in 1695.

From notes sent by Mrs. F.J. McAllister, 737 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, 60611 to Mrs. Snapp, and from her to me, we find:

William Bullock married Patience Paynter, 11-1-1632, according to records taken from Southampton Parish, the eldest in the Islands. Lefroy's Memorials of Bermuda Vol. II, p. 460 includes a pamphlet printed 1682 entitled "Public Tryal of the Quakers in Bermuda on May 1, 1678", by Sampson Bond, late preacher of the Gospel in Bermuda. The chief on the Quaker side included William and Patience Paynter, among others. Stephen Bullock, master of a ship from Barbadoes in 1676, was sent to jail for assisting Elizabeth Carter, Quakeress.

In Colonial Records of Bermuda, Vol. V, p. 403 we find "Manura" a servant of Mistress Patience Bullock's marriage to John Darrell, 11-15-1671. Witnesses were Patience & John Bullock, and John Wainwright. Patience Bullock married Nathaniel Field, 5-9-1701. "Witnesses by Marian Bullock" - who could have been Mary, who married Rene St. Julien. Patience evidently had two daughters, as found in her having to pay 1 shilling for every Sunday's absence from their parish church. It is believed that John, Stephen, and the two daughters were children of William and Patience Bullock.

Robert, Earl of Warwick, appointed Mr. Stephen Paynter his agent in Bermuda in these words: "Whereas I have many affairs to be transacted in the Somers Islands which will require the care of a person of fidelity and discretion, I have thought fit and consider well of your qualifications in both these respects." 2-13-1645. In the Story of Bermuda by Hudson Strode we read: "Paynter Vale Plantation was owned by Stephen Paynter." This may still be found in Bermuda.

Some of the Bullocks went to Barbadoes, on account of the persecution of Quakers; others remained in Bermuda.

Mary Bullock, wife of Rene St. Julien, is said to have been a "great lady" of Spanish and Scottish descent, reputed to have been very wealthy and beautiful. Rene is said to have been a giant in stature with red hair, a quick temper, and an indomitable will, a Presbyterian of the strictest form who particularly disliked the Quaker testimony against war and slavery! Their attitudes must sometimes have conflicted. Some of their descendants in North Carolina became Quakers.

"Descendants of Rene and Mary Bullock Julien include many statesmen, teachers, ministers, lawyers, and doctors from the beginning, as well as some without benefit of education, but all have been people of character."

For the lineage of W.L. McKinstrey, Jr., descendant of two of Isaac Julian's progeny, Isaac, Jr. and Rebekah, see p. 99.

CALVIN HINSHAW (Isaac); wife (Jesse)

Calvin Hinshaw, of Julian, North Carolina, is a descendant of Isaac Julian. From a recent letter, with the envelope bearing the treasured postmark JULIAN, N.C. I quote:

"I do not think George that married Hannah was the son of a George. I have a copy of a Julian history written about seventy-five years ago which states that Isaac (I descend from him) came to North Carolina from Virginia because of Indian raids. The author states Isaac found his brother, George, had come one day ahead of him and had settled near the present town of Julian. I have recently found Hannah Julian's grave. She was rather old when she died. Her husband had fought in the Battle of Alamance, and had taken the Oath of Allegiance to the King. He would not fight during the American Revolution. His son Jesse (the ancestor of my wife) was too young at the time of the Battle of Alamance to fight. He later joined the American forces during the Revolution and was captured... Jesse settled south of the town of Julian. The town was named for the Julian family when the railroad was built between 1884-1886. The Julians had a place of worship on their farm. After Jesse Julian died in 1846 the family deeded a plot of ground for a church. The church is now Methodist. Several of the old Julians are buried here..... Isaac settled a few miles to the west near the present town of Randleman, N.C."

ZERA HOWE

*Mrs. Edmund A. Burns (Martha B.) who signed Bea Julian Snapp's application for membership in the Huguenot Society and other correspondence as Assistant Secretary of the Huguenot Society of South Carolina made a scribbled notation, bearing out Calvin Hinshaw's belief that George who married Hannah was not the son of George I. She wrote: (in line of descent) Rene, Peter, Geo., m. Hannah, Jacob, d. York, S.C., George, 1770, m. Rebecca. She said: "They were of the fourth generation from Rene, the Julians who came to Tennessee ca 1815." Listed as siblings of George (1770) were Jacob, Leah, Rachel, John, Mary, Samuel D. Peter, of Rene, and Peter Jr. were Regulators. Peter, Sr. was married 4 times. He is said to have taken his own life in 1806. Zera Howe, Medaryville, Indiana, 47957 is very interested in the Peter Julian, son of Rene, line. She gives the following generations: Peter, b. ca 1712; Peter Jr., b. ca 1742; Elizabeth, b. 1779; m. Nathan Aldridge, came to Connersville, Fayette Co., Ind, ca 1814. Mary Aldridge, m. Hansell; George Hansell; dau. Zera m. Howe.

Aldridge-Julian marriages further compound double relationships:

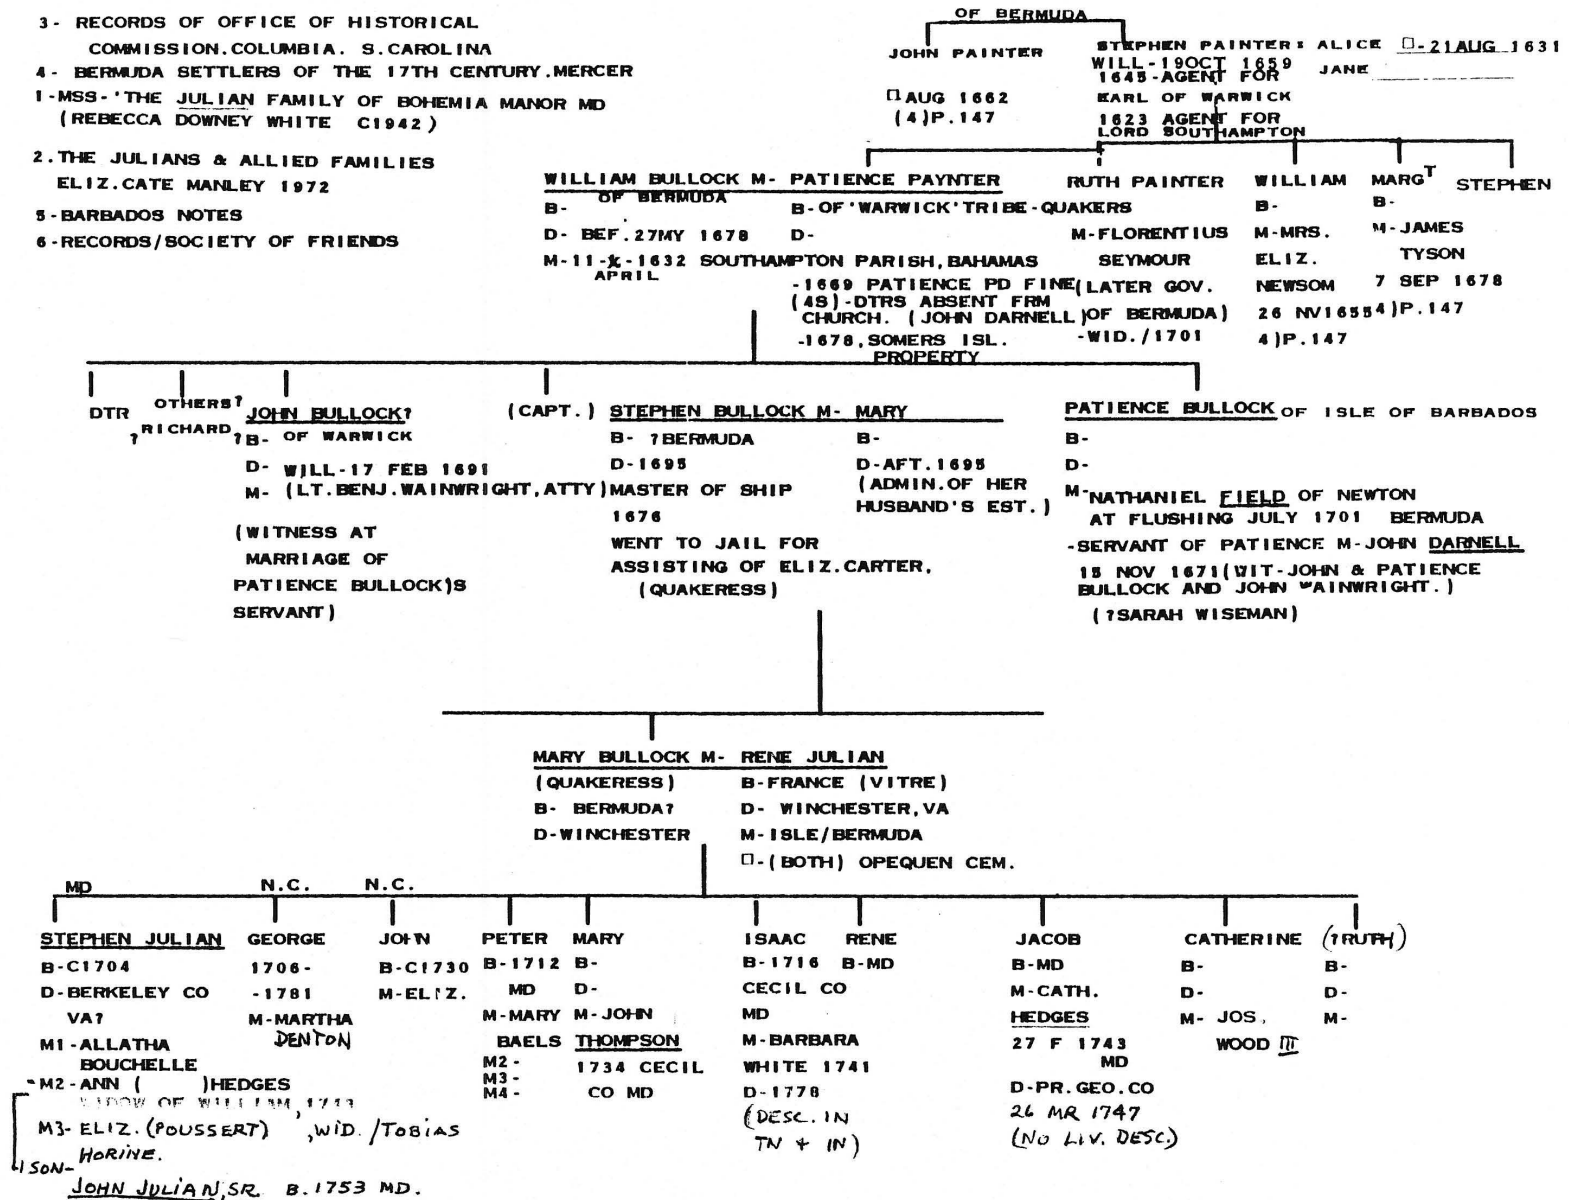

1. John Julian (of George, 1752) m. Sarah Aldridge, 1797-see next page
2. Jesse Julian m. Eleanor Aldridge York, sister of Sarah above
3. Elizabeth Julian, dau. of Peter, Jr. above, m. Nathan Aldridge
